Stockholm Liver Week 2018

The annual multidisciplinary meeting on Clinical Hepatology

The program encompasses medical, surgical and diagnostic aspects of clinical hepatology, considering both adult and pediatric patients. The organizing committee comprises members from various departments: adult and pediatric hepatology, transplant and hepatobiliary surgery, anesthesiology and infectious diseases, all at Karolinska University Hospital. The official language is English, with invited international and national experts as speakers. A parallel programme is arranged by and for nurses in Swedish.

Topics during the 2018 meeting:

- Update on HBV, HDV and HBV treatment (in the transplanted and non-transplanted).
- Decompensated cirrhosis – practice today and future trends (case-based discussions)
- End stage liver disease in children and adolescents
- NAFLD and HCC
- Acute liver failure in the ICU-do it right from the beginning!
- Liver transplantation and alcohol
- Donation after cardiac death and machine perfusion of the liver
- Malignant (and potentially malignant) changes in liver recipients with PSC
- ECALSS symposium: Ablative therapies
- Benign hepatobiliary lesions
- Pediatric workshop
- Basic science workshop (Liver Academy@KI)
- Nurse's programme covering transition clinic, pregnancy after transplantation, organ donation, immune suppression.
